Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Ariz.

Friday, Oct. 11, 2002

More sugar, more energy.

Tech. Sgt. Marlin Zimmerman

Davis-Monthan Air Force Base children scramble to collect an assortment of candy from a beaten and broken pinata at a youth center pinata party Sept. 25. The party was sponsored by D-M's Hispanic Heritage Committee in Honor of National Hispanic Heritage Month, which is observed Sept. 15 through Tuesday.

Recruiter Screening Team to visit D-M

By Tech. Sgt.
Brian Davidson
355th Wing Public Affairs

The first step for all Air Force members to "step into the blue" is through a recruiter's door.

D-M people who are interested in finding out what it takes to wear the recruiting service badge and help others take that first step should attend a one-hour meeting with recruiting service representatives Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in the first-floor conference room of the 355th Mission Support Squadron, Bldg. 3200.

D-M access requires pass

All visitors must go through security forces

By Stephanie Ritter
355th Wing Public Affairs

Knowing the details of acquiring a temporary pass to visit Davis-Monthan Air Force Base is an important part of the base's security responsibility.

According to Tech. Sgt. Joseph Martinez, 355th Security Forces Squadron NCO in charge of pass and registration, all visitors to D-M 16 years of age or older need a pass.

"Many people think that if security forces are not conducting 100 percent ID checks at the main gate, they can bring a guest on base as long as the vehicle they are in has a valid sticker," said Martinez. "However, that is not the case. The ID check is just one way to enforce the requirement that everyone in a vehicle has a valid pass."

Valid ID card-holders older than 18 years can obtain passes for their guests from the visitor's center Monday through Friday from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday, Sunday and holidays from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people.

Ideas, suggestions, comments, concerns and kudos are important to make improvements.

The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional managers listed here. Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 228-4747.

An e-mail can also be sent to: 355th.Wing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message. They will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If a concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published.

A lot of hot air ...

I just came from the Haefner Center where it is an air-conditioned facility. An A/C facility should not have open windows or doors. It seems that the crew at the center seems to think they can cool the building by opening the basketball court doors. All this does is let in the hot air and heat and cuts down on the efficiency of the air conditioning. The A/C has a return duct that sucks the hot air in from outside. The front door and hallway feels like a sauna, even in the hallway between the basketball court and the circuit training room. Maybe an A/C expert from civil engineering can explain to the fitness center personnel that everything should be kept closed when it is an air-conditioned facility.

Response: Thank you for your concern. The Haefner Fitness Center is not fully air-conditioned, specifically the gym floor area. Personnel have to monitor the temperature and take appropriate steps to keep the gym cool. DoD criteria has changed since Haefner was built, and keeping in line with current policy, the new fitness center is 100 percent air-conditioned. If you have any further questions, please contact Robert Gibson, fitness center director, at 228-0019.

Problem with the tennis courts

This is to re-address an article I read in the Desert Airman earlier regarding the tennis courts. Ever since the article was published I have been out there Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, 6 to 8 p.m., and I am here to tell you that the area is not being policed up. The nets are not being straightened up and tightened down. The fenced area has not been repaired so the balls won't roll under and out into the street or the parking lot of the racquetball courts, and the water has not been working there for at least a week.

Response: The green backdrop was taken off five years ago after high winds broke the fence. The fitness staff will attempt to replace the backdrop in a way that will not reduce the integrity of the fence during windstorms. The nets are set to regulation height in accordance with U.S. Tennis Association guidelines every morning by the staff. By adjusting the straps on the net, the height can be adjusted and some customers will continue to adjust the height to their satisfaction. The fence will be taken care of as soon as funds are available.

The end cap for the aluminum bench has been reattached. Fitness personnel do check and sweep the tennis courts first thing every morning and again at approximately 8 p.m. We have purchased a broom to keep on the courts permanently so if an area needs to be swept, a customer can take care of it. If you have any further questions please contact the Robert Gibson, fitness center director, at 228-0019.

Team D-M Mission Spotlight

Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Center is one of Davis-Monthan's most well known features, and is an agency under the Air Force Material Command. AMARC traces its heritage at D-M back to 1946 when the 4105th Army Air Force Base Unit was established to store and manage the vast number of surplus aircraft no longer needed in the Army Air Force operational inventory.

AMARC is a major industrial center that provides for the storage, regeneration, relcamation and disposal of aircraft and aerospace items as well as selected non-aerospace, outsized and specialized items. Encompassing 2,600 acres, the center has approximately 4,600 aircraft in storage with an acquisition value of almost $27 billion.

Veterans give free phone cards to airmen

By Staff Sgt. Todd Lopez

Air Force Print News

Service members who have served overseas in the past are once again giving assistance to those airmen currently serving overseas.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Foundation, through the Air Force Aid Society, is providing phone cards and other items to overseas Air Force members and to their families at home.

This is the fourth consecutive year the VFW Foundation has conducted the program, called Operation Uplink. The cards will also be given to members of the other military branches and their families.

The administrator of corporate and foundation development for the VFW Foundation said the program provides a growing and viable service to those who need it the most.

"Operation Uplink has provided more than a million cards over three years to the military," said Mike Meyer. "This holiday season, Operation Uplink will join with Wal-Mart's Good Works Program, Hallmark and Federal Express to deliver one of these cards to every active-duty military person stationed overseas."

The phone cards should be available in family support centers and from personnel support for contingency operations, or PERSCO, teams in time for the holiday season, he said. The cards will be made available overseas through an agreement with Federal Express.

Besides phone cards, the VFW Foundation provides other items distributed to military members and their families, such as cookies, playing cards, puzzles, books on tape, writing kits, bulletin boards, birthday candles and toys.

The ability and willingness of the VFW to support today's military people was not lost on retired Lt. Gen. Mike McGinty, chief executive officer of AFAS, which serves as a gateway to the Air Force for organizations wanting to provide assistance.

"They have access to a lot of — I call them 'goodies' — items that companies have taken off the market or have an excess of," McGinty said. "VFW has offered to ship those goodies to us so we can share them with the troops and their families."

According to Meyer, the primary reason the VFW provides this type of support to the armed forces is because they understand the needs of military members serving overseas.

"We are also cognizant of the needs of their families when those veterans are gone and they are serving," said Meyer.

It all comes down to assuring military members that their families are taken care of back home, so that they can concentrate on the mission, he said. "We feel that if a veteran's family is 100 percent taken care of, they can support their family member who is overseas," said Meyer. "As a result, the service member will know his family is taken care of, and he will feel better about serving his country."

News Notes

D-M 50 picnic

The D-M 50, local civic leaders and base supporters, are hosting a picnic for the base Oct. 26 at Bama Park, on the corner of Craycroft and Nuggat roads. The picnic is free and open to all Davis-Monthan Air Force Base members and their families and features entertainment, prizes, food and beverages. Watch the Desert Airman for more information as the date grows near.

Government travel cards

Effective Oct. 3, government travel cards were canceled for members who had not used their GTC for the past year or longer. Card-holders should check with the bank or agency program coordinators prior to performing any TDYs in order to make sure their account is active.

Volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed for the Special Olympics Pima County 2002 bowling competition. The events take place Oct. 24 through 26 with two sessions each day. For more information call William Anderson, Special Olympics volunteer coordinator, at 228-6680.

White House fellowship program

All U.S. citizens (except federally employed civilians) are eligible to apply for the White House fellowship program. This program seeks to provide exceptionally promising people from throughout the nation with first hand experience in the process of governing our nation. Interested citizens can get more information at www.whitehousefellows.gov.

Ex-POW Association

The Korean ex-POW Association will be holding their reunion for Camp 2 in Tucson at the Sheraton Hotel and suites. Camp 2, located on the Yula River, was the primary Chinese Prisoner of War camp for allied officers. About 50 ex-POWs plus family and friends will attend. A memorial service is scheduled to be held on Davis-Monthan Air Force Base at Heritage Park, (the existing POW memorial site) Sunday at 9 a.m.

Concessionaire move

Due to the opening of the new Army Air Force Exchange Service station and the pending demolition of the old service station, the Auto Specialists will move to a new facility in the auto skills center compound Monday. For more information, call 790-4504.

Recruiting

Recruiting duty is open to senior airmen through master sergeants with less than 16 years active-duty service. Other eligibility requirements will be discussed during the meeting.

In addition to volunteers, recruiting officials encourage those who are identified by the Air Force Personnel Center and who were approved by their commander for recruiting duty to attend. This is also an excellent opportunity for people in a mandatory retraining career field.

The meeting focuses on the benefits of being a recruiter and will address rumors many people believe about recruiting duty. Spouses are welcome and encouraged to attend.

“Recruiting can be the most challenging and self-gratifying job you will ever have. Only the best need apply,” said Brig. Gen. Edward Rice, Air Force Recruiting Service commander. “The development and maintenance of our national defense structure requires a steady flow of highly qualified young men and women to perform the multitude of jobs required in the Air Force today and tomorrow.

Responsibility for the number and quality of young men and women who are persuaded to embark upon an Air Force career rests almost entirely with individual recruiters.

Only the top people from a variety of career fields are selected for recruiting duty. The ideal volunteer or candidate is an NCO who is motivated to be a recruiter and is willing to accept any geographical area. Still, an applicant’s geographical preferences are the first criteria used in initial assignments. Recruiting is a four-year controlled special duty assignment and recruiters earn special duty pay of $375 per month.

Those selected for recruiting duty attend a 31-day recruiting school at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas. Graduation standards in Recruiting School are high and the course includes Air Force benefits and entitlements, program selection criteria, advertising and promotion, community relations, speech and salesmanship.

“A more vital enlisted profession does not exist in the US Air Force,” said AFRS Command Chief Master Sgt. Ken Kowalski. “It’s a tough, tremendously challenging, satisfying and rewarding job.”

For more information on the Recruiter Screening Team briefing, call Senior Master Sgt. Lionel McFarlane at 228-7829. For more information about serving as an Air Force recruiter, log on to www.rs.af.mil.

Air Force reduces number of security forces deployed overseas

Air Force officials reduced the number of security forces needed at deployed locations by 10 percent, allowing more than 200 airmen to come home earlier than planned.

The adjustment was the result of a manpower assessment and helps reduce the operations tempo for this critically manned career field. Following the review, officials determined more than 300 additional security forces positions can be reduced from future air and space expeditionary force deployments.

Technological advances and the findings of an operations review are some of the reasons behind the reductions, said Lt. Col. Troy Robinett, U.S. Central Command Air Forces' chief of force-protection operations. Guardsmen and Reservists currently fill about 95 percent of the reductions identified.

"We've seen many technology advancements that have replaced the need to physically have a person perform certain tasks," Robinett said.

The reductions, while primarily affecting Reserve forces, will affect active-duty forces in the long term. Active-duty forces would eventually have to fill the positions as the Reserve forces are demobilized, said Chief Master Sgt. Ezzard Luke, Air and Space Expeditionary Force Center security forces scheduler, Langley Air Force Base, Va.

"We mobilized a lot of Guard and Reserve forces to meet the initial demand," Luke said. "Even though Reserve forces may be tasked in future rotations, the overall burden would still fall to the active force."

Many of the troops who filled these positions have already been sent home while another large chunk of the positions were eliminated before airmen left for deployed locations. (Courtesy of ACC News Service)

Visitor

closed, sponsors can obtain passes for guests from the Craycroft Road gate. "The passes issued at the main gate only last until the next morning when the visitor center reopens," said Martinez.

"I think of the visitor's center as Christmas at the post office everyday," said Edward Margosian, 355th SFS visitor center receptionist. "We always have long lines. A lot of time could be saved if people verified all information before stepping up to the counter. I estimate that 15 to 20 percent of people who wait in line get up to the front only to find out that they don't have the proper information needed to get a pass."

In order to obtain a valid pass, both the guest and the sponsor need to be present.

In addition, if a guest wishes to bring their vehicle onto the installation, they need current proof of insurance, a valid driver's license and current registration, items that are already required to drive in the state of Arizona.

"We get a lot of people who get upset when they can't get on base because they don't have proper information," said Margosian. "We are just trying to enforce what's already required to drive in Tucson before we issue a pass."

In addition, the rules apply to everyone, at all times. "Even if a pass was issued yesterday, that does not mean that their information is still valid today or that someone didn't miss something in the process the day before," said Martinez. "An individual's information will be checked each time they request a pass; no exceptions."

Normally, passes written at the visitor's center are valid until the next duty day. However, there are some cases in which people can obtain an extended visitor pass from Bldg. 3200 for up to 30 days. For more information on obtaining visitor passes for special events (weddings, birthday parties, retirement ceremonies etc.) contractors or a visitor planning an extended stay, call the pass and registration office at 228-3224.

D-M provides one-man PERSCO for AEF 5, 6

By Capt Chrissy Cuttita
355th Public Affairs

Among the approximate one thousand members from Davis Monthan Air Force Base deployed for Aerospace Expeditionary Forces 5 and 6, one shared his experience being stationed at Bagram Air Base, Afghanistan.

Master Sgt. Rodney Welden, military personnel flight NCO in charge of evaluations; awards and decorations; and reenlistments here at the 355th Mission Support Squadron, shares his story.

Deployed, Welden performs as a fully functional personnel support for contingency operations, or PERSCO, trained combat personnelist.

According to Maj. Robert LaBrutta, 355th MSS commander, the PERSCO team's wartime mission is deployment, reception, strength-accountability, casualty reporting and sustainment of our combat forces. Additionally, in wartime, personnelists work in direct support of the security forces in their air base ground defense role.

"We have tons of interaction with Army folks and troops from other nations too, and guess what; it's not all bad," said Welden in an e-mail sent to his co-workers here at the 355th MSS.

Interactions with other troops and on-the-job challenges teach lessons and make him more appreciative as Welden learns his predecessors have it worse.

Weldon advises members that may be part of future deployments, "if they can't flex a bit and find the pluses, three months here would seem like three years."

Pluses can be finding a warm shower after marching to the Navy run shower or something other than meals ready to eat for lunch or dinner or finding good stuff at the Army maintained mini post exchange.

Other challenges, according to Welden, include hiking 75 yards to the port-a-john and an almost half-mile hike in ultra-fine sand to get to the Army chow line.

"The chow line looks like something out of M*A*S*H, but the food tastes pretty decent after waiting to eat it in line outside during a minor dust storm," said Welden.

Day to day Welden also lives in a tent with up to 19 roommates in the desert of Afghanistan.

"If you can't sleep through things like mortar (fire), mine (detonations) and the occasional phosphorous bomb explosion, or the sound of all sorts of aircraft launches and landings just a few hundred yards away, you'd be in for a lot of long shifts," said Welden.

This is one of two mess tents available in Bagram. There is no air-conditioning or heat, the tables are raw plywood, lightweight and prone to tipping.

The military members at Bagram said there is one sink and three showers for all the women in the Air Force village. The men's side is only slightly larger.

"We have a total of 11 personnelists who are deployed from the military personnel flight, three personnelists from different commander support staffs, and one from the wing staff for a total of 15," said LaBrutta.

"What's impressive is that the 355th Wing is only one of two wings in Air Combat Command that filled all AEF 5 and 6 personnel requirements without a reclama."

Our mission, our camaraderie, our core values set us apart

By Lt Col. Don Bacon

41st Electronic Combat Squadron

Most of us joined the Air Force because we wanted a mission that was important and to do something that was larger than merely serving our own interests. We also joined for the camaraderie and the opportunity to work with like-minded professionals who put integrity and service as the cornerstone of their lives. I fear, though, that we're letting much of this slip through our fingers and that we're losing this culture that separates us from the civilian community.

I'm seeing a growing number of airmen (officers and enlisted) who feel they owe nothing to the Air Force after duty hours. Today, the majority don't belong to the clubs, nor feel the obligation to participate in Air Force balls and unit social functions, nor the desire to serve in the unit's Top-3 and unit advisory councils. Many of our ranks want the camaraderie and cohesion but are unwilling to pay the personal price to make it happen. Similarly, I see our legalistic-driven society creeping into our Air Force way of life and taking hold. Too many of our folks are starting to base right and wrong on simply what is legal or not legal. Doing the legal thing (or what can I legally get away with) is becoming the sole basis of making decisions. I think this spells trouble, as often the strictly legal course of action is the minimum that we should be doing. We're not called to do just the minimum, but to do what is right. For example, if I get in trouble downtown with the local authorities, I may or may not have a legal obligation to tell my boss. Nonetheless, I should still tell my boss because it is the right thing to do. Our profession is based on honesty, taking responsibility for our actions, and learning from our mistakes.

Being in the Air Force is not just a job. It is not a commercial airline and I don't think we want it to become that way. If we're not careful, we'll start becoming an organization where the majority of our folks see the Air Force as strictly a 9-to-5 venture. Before long, we'll start losing our clubs and will lose that sense of cohesion and togetherness that has been so special since our founding.

I know we don't want to have social gatherings where only the commanders and first shirts show up. Moreover, we don't want to lose that cornerstone of integrity on which the Air Force profession is based. Our commanders and first shirts are only part of this solution, and truly only a minor part.

The real answer needs to come from junior airmen leaders, officers and enlisted, who take the informal leadership in their organizations. The solution lies with our young leaders, and it starts with remembering what makes us special and why we joined.

Our mission, our camaraderie and our core values are what set us apart. Losing these would be a tragic loss for our service.

Air Force befriends 60K loader

Story and photos by Staff Sgt. Russell Wicke
355th Wing Public Affairs

Although the Air Force is known for its bombers and fighters, the need for cargo aircraft is just as essential to the mission despite the lack of firepower. When there is a need for large cargo aircraft, there is also a need for large cargo loaders.

The 355th Transportation Squadron holds the keys to one of the Air Force's largest aircraft loading vehicles made. "The 60K aircraft-loading vehicle is a complex and sophisticated support vehicle costing more than $2 million," said Walter Spears, 355th TRANS special purpose element chief. Consequently, the size of this vehicle matches the cost.

"It is just under 50 feet long and 15 feet wide," said Spears. "It can safely transport and transfer up to 60,000 pounds of palletized cargo, shipping containers, air-drop platforms and rolling stock from a large variety of aircraft including the C-141, C-5 and C-17 aircraft."

While Davis-Monthan Air Force Base doesn't have any of these large cargo aircraft assigned here, Staff Sgt. Jay Patel, 355th TRANS special purpose mechanic, said we use the 60K aircraft loader for transient aircraft and deployments. For this reason, 355th TRANS is tasked with maintaining Staff Sgt. Jay Patel, 355th TRANS, locks down a brace of the 60K loader for loading and unloading cargo.

Senior Airman Thomas Riggle, 355th Transportation Squadron, performs a routine inspection on the cargo rolling guides of the 60K aircraft-loader. Without a close look, corrosion can lock up these guides.

this massive loader for aircraft loading here.

"Due to the size and versatility of this loader, many complex and interactive systems are utilized to perform the various functions required in moving cargo," said Spears. According to Patel, 16 of the 20 tires pivot for steering, enabling this vehicle to be highly maneuverable for its size. This is one of the features that make the maintenance on the 60K loader so complex.

"One of our biggest challenges with this loader is maintaining the hydraulic systems," said Senior Airman Thomas Riggle, 355th TRANS special purpose mechanic. "Almost everything it does is hydraulic." There is more to this vehicle than hydraulics, however.

"It incorporates a computer, numerous electrical relays and electrical switches," said Spears. Riggle also added that it features many cargo rollers that require routine inspection.

Because of the complexity and uniqueness of this vehicle and its systems, three weeks of specialized training is required to qualify a mechanic for maintenance on the 60K loader. "A good working knowledge in electrical, hydraulic and mechanical principles as well as having the ability to visualize the interaction between these subsystems are required by the mechanic to effectively maintain and repair this loader," said Spears. The complexity of this machine is only one example of D-M's versatile force.

Although most people know of the Air Force's impressive aircraft, to include the cargo birds, many people are unaware of the equipment needed to assist our aircraft in accomplishing the mission. The 60K aircraft-loading vehicle is just one of them.

Buckling up is a priority even for this slow loader.

In order for this loader to accommodate large aircraft like the C-5 Galaxy, it must reach as high as the aircraft cargo area.

Fitness Factoid

Colon cancer is less common in people who remain physically active. Recent studies show regular exercise may lower substances that promote tumor growth in the colon. Any physical activity done daily is helpful, especially if your lifestyle involves sitting most of the day. The other weapon against colon cancer is screening. Talk to your provider if you’re older than 50 years and haven’t been tested. (Courtesy of Fitness and Sports Center)

Intramural 3K, 5K and 10K races

Race dates are today, Oct. 18 and 25. Register on race day at 6:45 a.m. at the water station on perimeter road by the Swan Gate. Commander’s trophy points will be awarded for participation and finishing times.

Gymnastics program

The youth center offers gymnastics classes Tuesday and Wednesdays for ages 2 to 18 years. Their instructor has more than 20 years of experience. For more information, call 228-8383.

Base-level bowling tournaments

Base level qualifying for the Air Combat Command Bowling Tournament will take place Nov. 18 through Dec. 27 at the D-M Bowling Center.

The ACC Championship Tournament is scheduled for Jan. 14 to 18, at D-M. The top male and female winner of each division at base level will compete in the ACC Championship. The minimum scratch average is 165 for women and 180 for men. The handicap division will use a handicap of 100 percent of 200. Bowlers wishing to compete need to make reservations with the center. Bowlers must bowl 24 games total to qualify for the tournament. Scratch and handicap requirements are still to be determined. ACC Championship Prizes, first place - $1,000, second place - $500, third place - $250. For more information, call 228-3461.

Monday Night Football

Football Frenzy and Monday Night Football happens each week during pro-football season at the E-Club’s Shock Wave Lounge. Doors open at 5 p.m.

All ranks are welcome. There are giveaways, prize drawings, half-time games and Cabana Specials. Early Bird Specials include 20 cent hot wings from 5 to 6 p.m.; 50 cent domestic drafts; 25 cent soft drinks until end of first quarter, then 75 cent domestic drafts and 50 cent soft drinks until the end of the game. A 10-inch pepperoni pizza is only $2 until 8:30 p.m. The squadron with the most representatives wins a prize. Wear team colors and win a prize if your NFL team has the most representatives.

Early arrival are eligible for a drawing to sit in the “Big Dawg” chairs and get VIP Box Treatment from 6 to 7 p.m.

Massage therapy

Massage therapy is available at the new Fitness and Sports Center by appointment. All practitioners are licensed and certified massage therapists. Massage gift certificates are also available.

According to the American Massage Therapy Association, some of the benefits of massage include: relief from tension headaches, reduced anxiety and stress, increased relaxation, increased flexibility, improved circulation, alleviation of muscle pain and improved immune system functioning.

“Massage is also a great addition to your workout routine by identifying problem areas before they develop into injuries by flushing out lactic acid that causes muscle stiffness and soreness,” said Joni Brennan-Hazlett, certified massage therapist. “Massage also speeds recovery and healing from exertion.” Hours of operation for October are: Monday from 9 a.m. to noon; Tuesday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.; Thursday from 5:30 to 9 p.m.; and Saturday from 8 a.m. to noon.

Additional hours will be added in the future. Call 326-0243 to schedule an appointment.

Cancer Treatment Research Foundation

Skin Cancer: The Most Common Cancer

Skin cancer is the most common kind of cancer today. There are an estimated 300,000 to 600,000 cases of melanoma and non-melanoma skin cancers. While it is the most common of cancers, it is also one of the most curable forms of cancer.

Prevention is the best fight against skin cancer. The following are important measures to take in the prevention of skin cancer:

- Wear spf 30 or higher when exposed to the sun
- Wear clothes that cover much of your skin while in the sun

- Locate shaded areas when in sunlight for extended periods of time
- Sun tanning of any type should be avoided
- Protect the head, face, neck and eyes at all costs
- Schedule outdoor activities when UV levels are minimal, such as in the early morning or late afternoon.

Common Sense Parenting®

New Book Brings Help and Confidence to Parents of Toddlers

Confidence. Less conflict. Enjoyment.

That's what author Bridget Barnes believes parents who use the techniques and skills explained in the new book, Common Sense Parenting of Toddlers and Preschoolers, can gain. Those skills have been taught to parents of 2 to 5 year-olds in workshops offered by Girls and Boys Town since 1996 and are now available to any parent through the book just published by Boys Town Press.

When a parent realizes that "I can correct my child, he or she may get upset with me, but the child is still going to love me," the parent gains confidence, according to Barnes. The book shows parents how to stay calm, communicate clearly, set boundaries, have reasonable expectations, give consistent consequences, and teach a young child self-control and other skills.

Parenting toddlers can be a time of high conflict. Many couples are just finding out that they have very different parenting styles — one may see the other as either too lenient or too strict, says Barnes. It may not be an exaggeration, she adds, to say that agreeing to use Common Sense Parenting® techniques "saves marriages. It can lead to a lot less strife."

Parents, according to Barnes, list many of the same problems with their toddlers — acting up at bedtime and meals, throwing temper tantrums, refusing to take "no" for an answer, etc. In dealing with these issues, however, parents also make common mistakes — treating children like "little adults," giving kids choices they're not equipped to make, and setting expectations too high.

Young children, she says, need lots of reminders, assistance, modeling, and patience. The book provides step-by-step information on how to do these things. Also included are answers to dozens of questions frequently asked by parents of toddlers.

Barnes is the mother of two and stepmother of four children and has been a Common Sense Parenting trainer for 13 years.

Common Sense Parenting of Toddlers and Preschoolers is available from the Boys Town Press, 14100 Crawford St., Boys Town, NE 68010, 1-800-282-6657, www.girlsandboystown.org/btpres

Boys Town Press is the publishing division of Girls and Boys Town, the original Father Flanagan's Boys' Home.
